

Malak Alasi

Malak Alasi is a Moroccan PhD student at the department of Cartography and Geoinformatics at (ELTE) Eötvös Loránd University, Budapest, Hungary. Her background includes Linguistics, Translation, and Cartography, along with some teaching experience at the university level. For her doctoral studies, she combines those fields and research on the history of the use of Arabic geographic names in Hungarian cartographic publications in the past two centuries. In addition to her specific research interest, she also works on the cartographic representation of topics related to the geography of her home country.